Martin Flavin Play Given Premiere Here

By THELMA B. MILLER

IT WAS HARD to realize that those were amateurs, responsible for the premiere presentation of Martin Flavin's play of the depression, "Sunday," given for the first time in any theater Wednesday evening under the auspices of Carmel Community Players. This is a "type" play, and hardly in any comparable group of professionals could more suitable types have been found for the nine roles.

The vehicle showed itself to be eminently good theater. The action progresses by means of contrasting moods. With the exception of several family free-for-alls, the play consists mostly of scenes between two people; each disclosing a new character-facet of the participants. Herein was disclosed an easily remedied weakness; some of the scenes are a trifle too long and talky, notably the scenes between Sally and Dave in the second and third acts.

A Note of Hope

But there are light moments, and the play ends on a note of hope. In the mouth of "Amos" the sheriff, the playwright has put his own belief that there is enough essential soundness in this country to weather worse storms than this. He has made "Sally", the daughter, a character of high strength and courage, and there is the feeling that even the dour, snarling parents have a second wind somewhere that will help pull them through. They don't wine, they snap; and that's a hopeful sign.

Highest praise is due Byington Ford for a fine straightforward interpretation of a high type of American manhood, as "Amos", the sheriff, and for a profound conviction of the play's importance which as director, led him to infuse the entire cast with his own appreciation. As a director he lead, he did not drive; and he never found it necessary to abandon a courteous, cooperative attitude toward his players.

Hit Down Grade

In brief, this is the story of a prosperous middle-class family which has hit the down grade. The head of the house is watching his hardware business slip into bankruptcy, helpless to save it in the general chaos. The mother keeps her end up so far as practical considerations go, but she is becoming a shrew. Her parents have come to the home after losing their farm. A son who has gone away to the city has been forced back to the parental roof by loss of a job and has gone to smash. The daughter has come home ostensibly on a visit, without letting it be known that her husband has lost his job too, and she has really come home as her only refuge. The son-in-law turns up at the end of the first act, shabby and hungry, and adds his problems to the general mess. Only character in the play who still has his head above water is the sheriff-brother of the household head, who tries to give them all a lift over the rough spots.

Miss Holtby Gifted

Mr. Flavin was fortunate to have Beatrice Holtby available to create his character "Sally". This gifted young actress has the same type of patrician beauty as Norma Shearer's—if comparisons are not invidious. It was a "fat" part for her, too, giving scope to a wide range of emotion; from the deep tenderness in her scenes with "Davé" to an uncomfortably real temper outburst with her mother; comradely affection toward her brother, and a sweet, filial relationship with her father and uncle.

George McMenamin plays "Dave", Sally's husband, with fine sense of

Government Turns Thumbs Down on Mail Delivery Here

THE tumult and the shouting about mail delivery were all to no point, after all. Some mental giant in Carmel had the happy thought to write to Washington about it. Back comes word from W. W. Howes, first assistant postmaster general, to the effect that "favorable consideration cannot be given at this time to inauguration of carrier service in Carmel" The reason has nothing to do with sentiments of villagers pro and con, but results from the practical consideration that "in view of the limited appropriation available, no new establishments of either city or village delivery service are now being made."

According to the letter from Howes, requirements for establishment of city delivery service are gross receipts of $10,000 or more per year, population of at least 2500 residing within improved territory, good continuous sidewalks, paved streets, cross-walks, street lights, street signs, house numbers, mail receptacles and fifty percent of building lots must have houses in which people are actually residing.

Gross receipts of the Carmel postoffice amounted to $25,236 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, according to the letter from Washington. This places the village definitely in the "city" class, so far as cash requirements are concerned. For village delivery service requirements are only $5000 gross recepits, and 1500 people residing within improved territory. The only difference between city and village service is that parcel post delivery is generally provided only at city devliery offices, and city carriers receive more than village carriers.

In order to determine whether city delivery service is warranted in Carmel, Howes states that an investigation would have to be made by a post office inspector. All this was preliminary to the information that Uncle Sam cannot afford to institute either city or village service here at present.

Religious Census To Begin Monday

About a dozen workers for Community Church, Carmel Mission parish and All Saints' Episcopal church will begin next Monday a religious census of the entire Carmel area. This is in line with a national movement suggested by President Roosevelt, to obtain accurate data on church affiliation. No proselytizing will be carried on in connection with the census, according to the pastors of the cooperating churches. Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett, Father Michael D. O'Connell, and Rev. Austin B. Chinn.

Every household in the village and its environs will be visited. The volunteer workers will ask questions as to denomination of the householders, or their preference if no church is attended regularly. It is believed that a renewed consciousness of the churches and their function in the community will be aroused during the census.

CITY HALL PLANS DELAYED

Developments in the direction of the proposed $40,000 city hall for Carmel are temporarily halted until definite figures are received from Washington on the proporation that will be loan and the proportion that will be outright grant.

BREVITY RECORD SET BY COUNCIL

Meeting in one of the shortest sessions in history, the city council Wednesday evening assembled three members, Mayor James Thoburn, John Catlin and Joseph Burge, only to adjourn when there was no business to consider.

This adjourned regular meeting had been set for possible action upon additional news from Washington upon the proposed city hall loan-grant, or upon suggested use of SERA workers to improve the waterfront highway, but nothing appeared relative to these. Next meeting is the regular one on December 5.

Mayor Thoburn said unofficially that there might be another meeting tonight of the three-city officials of the peninsula to consider whatever information the group's engineers had gathered relative to the size of the proposed water district for this region. The meetings in Monterey are open to the public.

MEETING POSTPONED

Postponed until January was the Wednesday morning meeting of the Woman's club current events section.

Mayors Meet Over Public Water Plan

Mayor James Thoburn, of Carmel, Dr. W. L. Teaby, of Monterey and Sheldon L. Gilmer, of Pacific Grove met Tuesday evening with attorney Argyll Campbell and William O'Donnell to discuss means of securing data on valuation of the peninsula water supply now controlled by Monterey County Water Works, with a view of acquiring it as a publicly owned project.

On December 6 there will be a hearing into water rates in the presence of state examiner M. R. MacKall, to be held in Colton Hall, Monterey, at 10 A. M., at which time a group of 49 water users will present a petition stating that the rates are too high. This however is a separate action from that of the utility company valuation appraisal.

FIRE DAMAGES AUTO

Defective wiring was believed responsible for a fire that damaged the motor of a car belonging to Paul K. Phillips, of Carmel, Monday morning. The fire department responded to the call but as the car was south of the city limits it could not participate.

BRADLEYS COMPOSE SONG

"Onward America," the song which was featured by the seventh grade on the Armistice Day program at Sunset school, was composed by A. B. Bradley, with words written by Mrs. Bradley. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley have a son, Fennimore, in the second grade. It is a song of real patriotism and the children sang it with joy and spirit.

Dog Cheats Executioner By Dying Before Mistress

DEATH from natural causes several months ago saved Pedro, pet Boston terrior of Mae Harris Anson from execution via the chloroform route, it was revealed this week in the will of the late Carmel playwright, filed for probate in Salinas. Miss Anson presumably took her own life recently by shutting herself in a garage and inhaling carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of her automobile.

Miss Anson had requested in a will written in 1931 that the dog be destroyed by a skilled veterinarian if it survived its mistress, for she feared it would not have a good home. "He would grieve too much, anyway," the will said.

The will was unusual in many respects and indicated a court fight for her estate, and that of her mother, who died in 1925.

Miss Anson wrote the will in longhand in which she cut off two sons of her brother's first marriage with bequests of one dolar apiece.

Evidence of Writing

The holographic will was penned according to the Carmel woman, because she wrote all her letters on the typewriter, and her family had no evidence of her handwriting. Anticipating a legal battle over dispostion of her mother's property, she wanted to have on file a specimen of her penmanship in order to prove that she signed no documents or letters bequeathing her mother's estate to others.

Bulk of her estate went to four children of her brother's second marriage. Aside from specific bequests to friends, they are to divide her estate equally. The children, Martha Anson Wickham, Robert MacAvoy Anson, Alexander Anson, and Kathryn Anson, live in England and France.

The estate consists of personal property and "possible" royalties from two plays, "The Woman," and "What's The News," the latter written in collaboration with Allan A. Hoffman, Carmel playwright.

Books to Library

Specifically, the deceased left all her books to the Harrison Memorial Library; a silver set to Eva Garcia Milholland, musical director with the National Broadcasting system in San Francisco; all her clothing to Mrs. Bruce Monahan, Carmel; rugs and jewelry to Virginia Norris, antique shop owner of Monterey; a large solitaire diamond ring and a valuable shawl to Martha Anson Wickham, another ring to Kathryn Anson, and several family heirlooms to the four legatees.

Margaret Clarke, of Toronto, Canada, was given a ring and scarf, while Hoffman was willed all the notes on her literary work.

Estate Under $10,000

E. A. Williams, Jr., Monterey lawyer, was made executor of her will, and he filed probate papers this week. He said the estate will not exceed $10,000.

Miss Anson was formerly a Minneapolis newspaper woman, and was one of the few women correspondents that covered the World War. She wrote several successful Broadway plays.

AT STANFORD ART GALLERY

A collection of more than 30 water color paintings by Miss Edith Heron, Monterey artist is being shown at Stanford Art Gallery until December 18. These scenes are painted in rich colors in a direct manner and have received favorable comment from artists and connoisseurs for their good draughtsmanship as well as their painted qualities.

AFTER THEATRE PARTY IS INSPIRED BY DANCERS

Two more interesting social events inspired by the presence of Benjamin Zemach and his group of dancing girls were an after-theater party given Saturday evening at the Charles Sumner Greene home by Miss Anne Greene and her parents; and a dinner given for the dancers by Miss Alice Austin of Seattle, who is wintering in Carmel.

the role's significance. This is the picture of young manhood, beaten down, discouraged, but essentially undefeated; driven by desperation to a crime which he is clear-headed enough to realize will not succeed even while he is perpetrating it. He is ready to take his medicine; perhaps it would be better, ethically and logically, for the playwright to let him take it, rather than to permit the good sheriff to compound a felony by turning him loose after robbery with violence. And I wonder, in a little town like that, if the sudden disappearance of the stranger, after a crime in which his brother-in-law is killed, wouldn't lead to some pretty serious consequences for all concerned?

A Tragic Figure

Evert Sholund is "Joe", the most tragic figure of the play. Through him is grimly depicted the tragic waste of good material which has resulted from the economic crisis. Sholund turns in a magnificent performance of the smart-alecky kid who covers his broken spirit with cocky defiance. He maintains over a long and difficult scene a tipsy bragadoccio which finally precipitates the most signicant of the family rows.

Dorothy Ledyard and Ross C. Miller are too true to life for comfort in their interpretation of what happens to middle-aged conjugal bliss when problems become too many to bear. Miss Ledyard handles an essentially unsympathtic role skillfully, and plays a hysterical scene with great conviction. Mr. Miller varies his role neatly from a snarling defiance toward the whole pack, through a sort of half-baked defeatest philsophy which is Fred Perkins' reaction to a situation he can neither understand nor control, to a loveable tenderness toward his daughter, the only bright spot in his life.

Note of Serenity

A pair of dear old granparents are Carol Edwards and Adolph Van Houtte; the sort whom in normal times would shed a patriarchal benificence over their descendants. Carol Edwards as "grandma" gives the play its only note of serenity; a sweet little body who goes her own busy way nearly oblivious to the general discord. Mr. Van Houtte's "grandpa" is a rich bit, with the querelous voice of age, a pair of most fetching mutton-chop whiskers, and a habit of mumbling on his ill-fitting false teeth.

Nearest to a comedy character is "Mac" the station agent, played by the cowboy actor, "Tex" Raiburn, whose poker-face solemnity and delicious southwestern accent adorn the play with a few acceptable light moments.

Having played two nights now, the drama will continue at the Playhouse tonight and tomorrow night, at which latter a number of San Francisco dramatic critics and other celebrities are expected to be present to see the close of the gala first run of the new Flavin play.

Zeppelin Film at Gallery This Week

Had Columbus been attended, as Commodore Eckener was, with a newspaper representative equipped with full moving picture camera and orders to spare no risk of life to get every detail of the epochal trip, the school-boy of today would not have to be forced to study his history book. The Graf Zeppelin was so filmed, and the stirring, momentous trip will be shown this week in the Denny-Watrous Gallery on Friday and Saturday evenings.

With "Around the World with the Graf Zeppelin" will be shown a picture equally startling, "Hell Below Zero," authentic record of an expedition into the storied mountains of equatorial Africa, headed by the famous explorer, Carveth Wells, who was sent out by the Milwaukee public museum. In full view of the steaming jungle, his party almost froze to death in the high mountains. A view of thousands of flamingoes standing in mirror-like waters of a lake, of a lion driving vultures from his kill, and many exciting adventures in the two extremes of climate.

A short of unusual interest to be shown at the same time is Lowell Thomas' "Island of Birds."

There will a special children's matinee on Saturday, Dec. 1, at 2:30 o'clock, and one reel especially chosen for children will be offered in addition to the above films.

MARY GARDEN TO TELL OF EARLY SINGING CAREER

Mary Garden, whom Huneker called the "super-woman," whom the world has called variously an "enchantress," a "miracle woman", and "the incomparable," appears in Carmel on Monday evening, Dec. 10, in the Sunset school auditorium, a Denny-Watrous Gallery attraction.

The life of Mary Garden reads like a fairy tale, with every word true. A Scotch girl, supposedly matter-of-fact and practical, with a voice that could be described as ordinary, she was called out of the audience at 18 to sing the final act of "Louise," when the prima-donna had been stricken, and leaped into fame and a popularity that has been accorded to few in musical history. She has been called the "greatest singing actress" of her time, combining an indescribable personal charm with an unpredictable way of "doing thngs" that sweeps her audiences before her.

Merle Armitage, her friend of 20 years, with whom the Denny-Watrous Gallery has made special arrangement for Mary Garden's Carmel program, has persuaded the celebrated diva to speak to her audience of her career. Colorful incidents in her life in Paris in the role of "Melisande" for Debussy will be sketched in her inimitable way, and interspersed at the proper moments will be arias and songs—as only Garden can interpret.

Accompanying Mary Garden, and playing two groups of solos, is the distinguished pianist, Jean Dansereau.

Thrilling Events for Presidio Meet

The third annual Presidio and Peninsula hunter trials and hunt race meet is scheduled for Dec. 14, 15 and 16 in the area of the old Del Monte steeplechase course.

A thriling program of events has been scheduled according to Paul G. Kendall, secretary for the meet. The meeting will introduce a sport new to California, the point to point race. A point to point race differs from the well known steeplechase in that the terrain over which it is run is rough hunting country. It has sharp turns, slides, and high jumps, all of which make the rider select his gaits carefully and have his horse under perfect control.

It is an entirely thrilling sport, both from the spectators viewpoint and that of the rider, it is said.

Judges invited to participate include Charles E. Perkins, Eric Tyrell-Martin, Lester A. Stirling, Col. Ben Lear and Col. John A. Barry.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

MISS EDNA PURVIANCE, who was Charles Chaplin's leading woman in many early pictures, and starred in his "The Woman Of Paris," has been vacationing in Carmel during the week before returning to Hollywood to take up picture work again in "The Great Zeigfield."

From the Niles canyon studios of Bronco Billy Anderson, near Oakland, to the now classical days of early Hollywood, Miss Purvaiance had close contact with the film industry.

One of the strange things about those early slapstick shows in which everybody appeared to be getting fractured skulls and broken arms, or suffocated from a cusard pie thrown in the face, Chaplin so timed his action as to prevent injuries to himself and his actors. Some scenes which lasted but a moment on the screen took several days to get as he wanted them, and long hours of hard work followed by spells of rest were the expected program once a picture got under way.

Newspapers say that Chaplin is at work on a new feature picture in which a city is controleld by levers and he, as the engineer, finally pulls everything at once to see what will happen.

PERRY NEWBERRY has sold another book. That news is more exciting to his friends than it is to this veteran and successful writer; he took it in an annoyingly calm manner when a messenger rushed breathlessly up the hill with the significant-looking letter from the postoffice.

The current opus is entitled "A Shot in the Night," a boys mystery story, and the publisher is Stokes. The book will make its appearance in the spring.

Parents and librarians know the Newberry books for boys as perennial favorites with young urchins. The older ones are still just as popular as the newer ones. Just how many of them he has written, Mr. Newberry cannot say offhand.

A writing family is this Newberry clan. The mother, Mrs. Fannie E. Newberry, was famous as a writer of romantic fiction half a century ago, and her books may still be found in many old family libraries. She ceased her activities some years ago. A brother, Roy Newberry, sometime writer of fiction, newspaper and hotel man, is in the newspaper business in the east, as is a sister, Mrs. Grace Kitchel.

In compliment to Mrs. Fred G. Andrews, writer and lecturer, who has recently come to Carmel to make her home, Mrs. James L. Cockburn gave a tea at her home, "Leialoha." About 50 guests met Mrs. Andrews during the afternoon and enjoyed Mrs. Cockburn's gracious hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. James Doud are back in Carmel for the week, stopping at Hotel La Playa. The Douds have been in Santa Barbara for some time, following residence of many years in Carmel.

Dr. L. M. Knox Arrives to Take Up Radiologist Work

ARRIVING in Carmel this week to take up the post as radiologist at Peninsula Community Hospital is Dr. Lawrence M. Knox, M. D., formerly of Wichita, Kansas. Staying temporarily at the home of their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dorsett, Dr. and Mrs. Knox and their two children, Laura Lee and Lawrence Lee are now established in residence near Santa Fe and Camino del Monte.

A native of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, Dr. Knox received his A. B. degree at Transylvania College, Lexington, Kentucky, and M. D. at Washington University Medical School in St. Louis. He entered at Peking Union Medical College in China in 1924 and 25, and the following year was assistant resident in the x-ray department of the same institution.

After another year in China as head of the x-ray department of the Shantung Christian University Hospital, he returned to the United States to head the x-ray departments of St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Norfolk, Va., in 1927; the Pontian Clinic, Pontiac Mich., from 1927 to 1930, and Wesley Hospital, Wichita, Kansas, from 1930 until coming to Carmel.

Wife of the doctor is Mrs. Bessie Lee Knox, native of St. Louis, Mo., and graduate of the Washington University School of Arts.

Dr. Knox' most important hobby is music; his first local appearance will be at Community church at next Sunday's service, at which Rev. Dorsett has asked him to present a tenor solo. During a recent visit to his aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shoemaker of Santa Monica, he gave a voice recital and lecture on the Orient for the benefit of the Christian church of that city.

The Knoxes drove through from Wichita, coming by way of Raton Pass, Colorado, Santa Fe, Gallup, Needles and Los Angeles.

The equipment with which Dr. Knox will work at the Community hospital is recognized as among the finest afforded by any institution of its size in the country.

MOVE TO SAVE CYPRESS TREES FROM DISEASE

Co-operation of the public to safeguard the world-famous Monterey cypress trees from a canker infection which would destroy them was sought today by Alexander Eddie, horticultural specialist for Del Monte and Pebble Beach.

In a statement issued today, Eddie pointed out the danger of the canker disease which has already infected one cypress tree in the Point Lobos State Park, Eddie said that as yet there are no known control measures for this disease and a cypress once infected will die.

The virus of the disease, Eddie explained, may be spread by agents impossible to control, so its seriousness on the Monterey Peninsula cannot be overestimated.

Through the action of S. F. B. Morse, president of Del Monte Properties Company, a restrictive measure was passed some years ago which governs all shipments of trees into the Monterey Peninsula that are members of the Cypress family. This quarantine calls for a certificate to accompany all cypress trees coming into the peninsula, certifying that the district of origin has been properly surveyed and that it is free of such canker.

MEDICAL SURVEY UNDER WAY HERE

As part of a state-wide movement to study what has been called "the high cost of medical care," half a dozen workers began this week a survey to determine how much Monterey county families are paying for medical and dental care, whether they are actually receiving good care and are able to maintain good health, and whether they can afford under present conditions to pay for adequate attention.

Sponsors of the survey are California State Department of Public Health, California Medical Association, State Dental Association and Western Hospital Association. Workers for the house to house survey are provided by SERA. All types of families will be visited in the quest for information.

Miss Ruth Hickox, field director of the survey for the entire state, is here to see the project under way, and is staying at Highlands Inn.

It is proposed to interview one family in each hundred, in the 27 most populous counties in the state; a total of 20,009 families will be visited. Statistics and graphs will be made as a result. All information will be held strictly confidential, and the families will not be considered individually or by name. In view of these facts, families interviewed elsewhere have been quick to cooperate, Miss Hickox says.

According to Dr. Paul A. Dodd of UCLA, state director of the survey, "The staff of the survey has no viewpoint to establish and no interest at stake save to discover facts. We are asking the public to cooperate by answering our vistiors' questions completely and accurately, in order that our study may be successful."

William Justema returned to San Francisco Monday after being a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Sullivan.

OLD-FASHIONED HOME CAN NOW BE MADE COMFORTABLE, COZY

You may live in an old-fashioned house that does not have a central heating plant, but don't let that make you feel doomed to spend your winter shivering about inadequate fireplaces or stoves!

Modern gas circulating heaters, which send warm, clean air circulating through all the corners of a room, can be installed in old buildings easily, quickly and inexpensively. So distinct a saving is this that many home owners are taking advantage of the provisions of the national housing act to modernize old homes by installing gas circulating heaters.

BACK FROM VACATION

Miss Leslie King has returned after two weeks vacation in the High Sierra and Nevada City.

PRIMARY GRADE CLASSES GIVE THANKSGIVING DRAMAS

Auditors found three Thanksgiving dramatizations given by children of the primary grades as a prelude to this week's holiday well executed and charming. The kindergarten presentation of "Little Black Sambo" was clearly done and highly amusing. Clever sets were made mostly by the children, under direction of Mrs. Anna Kohner. High first, high second and second grade songs were enjoyable.

The first grade Mother Goose rhymes taught the child auditors lessons of safety as well as offering expressive medium in informal lramatization. Third grade pictures of Indian life explained by class members had an artistic as well as part of this program was the lovely Indian chanting accompanied by rhythm drumming.

HOUSING ACT HELPS WITH HOME HEATING

Save $6 By Buying Winter Heater Now

Sponsored by the Gas Appliance Society of California, a gas circulating heater campaign is being launched here today by local furniture and appliance dealers. Through the co-operation of the Society and the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, and for a limited time only, $6.00 will be deducted from the purchase price of any gas circulating heater regularly priced at $33.50 or more, not installed.

Gas circulating heaters come under the provisions of the new Fede ral Housing Act, the Gas Appliance Society points out, and this fact coupled with the special offer being made by local dealers during the campaign, makes this a most favorable time for the purchase of a new gas circulating heater.

According to heating experts these new gas circulating heaters bring carefree, economical, clean heat into the modern home. Scientifically designed, they quickly and efficiently circulate warm air throughout the rooms to be heated. A turn of the valve brings instant abundant warmth. The new gas circulating heaters are also an attraction to any room. They are inexpensive to buy, and many satisfied users testify to their extreme economy of operation.

The public is invited to visit the retail stores and see the many models of gas circulating heaters on display during the campaign period. Salesmen will be glad to explain the operation of these modern heaters as well as the details of the special offer being made for a limited time only.

These modern heaters provide abundant, comfortable heat at any time—day or night—with simply the turning of a valve. You do not even need a match. They are economical to install and will heat from two to six or seven rooms at lowest cost, thus providing everything the modern home demands.

GOVERNMENT RELIEF PERMANENT

With the persistance of a well-directed "whispering campaign," word is circulating to the effect that "the government is going to throw the whole relief problem back on private charity." This story has been a hardy perennial for the past two years; it is more wide-spread than usual right now.

It is difficult to trace such stories to their source. A little straight thinking would show people that it is a fantastic yarn. Insiders say that "the wish is father to the thought," yet that is difficult to understand, for the simple reason that the sheer number of families on relief would now constitute an impossible burden for private charity. The government has a bear by the tail in this case. Any attempt to shift the relief burden now would precipitate a revolution in three months, and the powers-that-be know that.

People who have always given generously to charity, according to their means, lose sight of the fact that many individuals perfectly able to do so have always shirked, and will always shirk, their duty to the less fortunate. Willy-nilly, they are contributing to welfare work now, through taxation. And how it hurts!

In California alone a good many millions of dollars have been spent setting up a pretty good system of work relief. The machinery is only now beginning to work smoothly. Neither the state nor the nation is going to scrap all that preparatory work. Another thing for realists to consider is that the SERA, on the inside, is organizing on a permanent basis. Some of the state agencies are already dropping the word "emergency" from their letterheads and literature. SERA bids fair to become one of the most firmly-knit and powerful organizations California has ever known. That is all to the good, if the public watches what is going on and the politicians are forced to keep their hands off. For this could become one of the most vicious political machines in history. Think of the club that could be wielded by unscrupulous politicians: "vote my way, or no more work relief for you." It has already been tried, but it failed; so Branion was indicted for nothing, last spring, and a certain outstanding Democratic politician signed his own death warrant.

No, SERA is here to stay. It is not going to fold up this winter, nor for half-a-dozen years to come, if the portents are correctly interpreted. And it is in the public interest to see that it is maintained in full efficiency, and more than all else, that it is kept clean of politics.

INFANT DEATH RATE

Obstetricians and gynecologists in district session at Hotel Del Monte last week were told that absence of rich food in diet of mothers during the depression has cut the infant death rate, according to press reports. Apparently the doctors paid no attention to the increase in still-births because of malnutrition of mothers during the depression. Maybe the doctors don't know about these accidents, as a good many of them take place without benefit of medical aid. But welfare workers know.

PRAYER BEFORE SNOW

November!
For every drowsy beast
That has gone creeping
Into the ground, into sheltering rocks and trees,
North and west, south and east—
Everywhere—
To find a place for sleeping
Till Spring's new birth
Of grass and leaf:
To you, great Father of the Earth,
Guardian of the least of these—
Our prayer!

Through Winter's pallid suns,
And frenzied blast
Smiting the land,
Watch every hollow log and shelving stone,
Counting the slumberers one by one,
You by whom all wild hearts were made,
Who can feel the grief
Of glazing eyes, bless with your hand
Where every hidden form is laid,
Till the bitter time is past.
Lord of the helpless ones—
Remember!

WEALTH

CEREMONIAL

I have laved my hands. I have rubbed them well
And have burnished them palely; just for you;
Because you admired me in alice-blue.
They have been scented to match the sweet spell
Of the valley-lily; a shy white bell.
I have chosen a ring of changing hue.
My hands are prepared to receive their due
From the lover they've needed. Can't you tell?

Last night I performed these rites, surmising
That you might desire my soft hand, to-day,
And carry it close to your somber lips.
Then is the time for my soul, arising
In perfume, to whisper what I would say.
How we love you—I and my finger-tips.

FROM THE HILLTOP

By PERRY NEWBERRY

MODERN CIVILIZATION

With the city council giving financial backing to a peninsula airport, flirting with a district-owned water works, and proposing a new city hall, Carmel seems headed straight for Main street. The best Chamber of Commerce in America could hardly better this program of achievement, and Podunk, Kalamazoo or King City would be proud of it.

Not that anyone really believes that we need either an airport, water works or a city hall here. Not that anyone is particularly interested in the projects themselves, or has figured the cost of ownership in added taxes and bonded indebtedness. The one argument that brings response from the people of Carmel is that these projects will give work to our unemployed, and help make labor for needy men during the winter.

Before we get deeper into the costs of useless improvements, a survey should be made of the local unemployment situation, and the exact needs of labor here. How would each of these proposals benefit Carmel workingmen? Would the erection of a city hall at a cost of, say, $60,000, put half of that amount into local circulation? Would Carmel men be employed, or would the successful contractor in the bidding bring in his own crew of men, as has always been done before? Just what could be expected in locally bettered conditions through the construction of a city hall?

Then, with these figures before us, let us see if the same benefit to our own unemployed may not be secured at less cost, immediate and in the future, for a city-owned building will be more costly to maintain than the rented quarters. Let's find work for our unemployed that will be advantageous to the city, rather than a detriment to it.

It is understandable that there will be ardent wooing of Carmel by both its neighboring cities for a hitch-up in utility districts. Carmel has a fat dowry in its assessed valuation, practically clear of bonded debt. With both of our neighbors heavily mortgaged, the wedding with Carmel would establish credit for the district. We are necessary for any sizable project on the peninsula, and every kind of argument will be used to break through our maidenly hesitation. It isn't the $10 per month rental that we must pay for an airport at Del Monte that interests our neighbors, but that unsullied credit that we have established by refusing to be jockeyed into debt by bond issues.

We seem to be going into this airport proposition without any effort of the council to find out how the people of Carmel feel about it. It should be necessary for the electorate to vote upon any such serious combination, register their "Yes" or "No" to a union that places them in a minority position for seven years, and may mean that, not wanting it, they become part owners in the project. But the council doesn't regard it as the business of the people. On the city hall matter, there must necessaritly be an election, and it might be wise to vote upon the airport at the same time. Also upon a water district, if that proposition can be prepared in time for a ballot.

ITALIAN TOWNS TOPIC OF NEXT CLUB MEETING

Miss Sarah Redington of Santa Barbara will be the guest speaker of the Woman's club at the monthly general meeting next Monday afternoon, Dec. 3, at 2:30 o'clock. Her subject will be "The Other Italian Hill Towns," the idea being that Perugia, Assisi, Orvieto and Siena are not the only ones. A short business meeting will precede the program, and a social hour and tea will close the afternoon.

Because of the holidays the various sections will have only one meeting each during December. The bird study auxiliary class, however, will have three meetings during the month, on Dec. 4, 11 and 18. The group will meet at the home of Mrs. H. S. Nye at Dolores and Eleventh, from there going into the field for bird study under Laidlaw Williams, teacher.

The garden section will meet Thursday, December 6, at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. G. F. Beardsley, Casanova and Eighth. Two sets of slides will be shown on "Spring Flowering Bulbs" with a talk by Clifford Hyde; and "Carmel Gardens" and talk by Arthur Hyde. The Hyde brothers are of the well known firm of H. A. Hyde & Company of Watsonville.

Miss Redington of Santa Barbara will again be the speaker for the book section, the morning of Wednesday, Dec. 5 at the Girl Scout house. Her subject will be "Biographies and Autobiographies."

The current events section meeting will be held Wednesday morning, Dec. 12, when Mrs. Everett Smith will speak on "Conservation."

Only meeting of the month for the bridge section will be on Monday, December 10, at 2:30, for the usual bridge tea.

Zemach in Second Dance Presentation

Second presentation of Benjamin Zemach and his group at Denny-Watrous Gallery Saturday evening permitted, by greater familiarity, more detached observation and enjoyment. Robbed of the impact of its strangeness, the distinctive technique of this master of dance, drama and pantomine emerges as a logical skeleton for expression of age-old emotions and ideas.

With the emotional tension relieved, Zemach's clever pantomine assumed greater significance in such numbers as "At the Well" in which a cocky lad is besieged by four charmers; "The First Quarrel" a dramatic interplay between Zemach and Thelma Babitch; and "The Begger" in which Zemach runs an emotional gamut, fawning upon an imaginary rich man, being included in the marriage festivities and indulging in unjustified familiarity, and slinking frightened back into his rags when his robust mockery brings down wrath.

Strong Oriental flavor of the whole program was intensified in the group of Palestinian folk songs by two of the girls, veiled, squatting figures, impassively chanting to the accompaniment of a hand drum, while the others dance-pantomined the action. Off-stage singing was the only accompaniment to some of the dances.

"Candelabrum" and "Lullaby" have the traditional lyric beauty of interpretive dancing. Even on second experience "Farewell to Queen Sabbath" remains too highly styalized and impressionistic to convey a message; any other title would do as well, and this dance more than any other seemed to be a sort of experimentation with materials.

Madame Hathaway, mother of Col. C. E. Hathaway, is confined to Peninsula Community Hospital as the result of a serious fall in which she sustained a broken hip.

PINE NEEDLES

Attending the largest "big game night" party in Hotel Del Monte's history, more than 400 students of Stanford and University of California dined and danced in the grill room Saturday night, and brought plenty of college spirit to Carmel over the week-end. The local celebration was also the largest in the state in point of actual attendance of students in California's most important scrimmage of the football season. The collegiate revellers were joined, of course, by a large number of Peninsula football enthusiasts, and alumni from all over the state. Del Monte's "big game night" tradition gained new color and impetus from the 1934 celebration, which goes down in history as the gayest yet.

Henrietta Shore Paintings Are in Tune With Infinite

By THELMA B. MILLER

AN ever-growing genius, nurtured in Carmel for the past four years, is exemplified in the painting of Henrietta Shore, one of the foremost American artists; and a woman whose distinctive gifts arise from a placing of herself, as the instrument, in tune with infinite and universal forces.

Henrietta Shore dislikes the term "self-expression" and all it connotes. She is humble about herself, while full of reverent awe toward the objects she paints. Nevertheless, deprecate the term as she may, if hers were not a rich and spiritual nature, her paintings would not give that sense of fulfillment of ultimate destiny, nor would her distinctive technique be so apparent in all her work.

Finds New Patience

Shore believes that her work has changed from time to time, but the growth has been so logical, and was so definitely set in one direction from the beginning, that at no stage could it be confused with the work of other artists. She says that she used to paint more "hurriedly," believing in the validity of spontaneous impulse; now with a new patience, she takes infinite pains, and finds, because of deeper understanding and complete absorption in the original conception, her work at the end of a long communion with one painting is as fresh as at the beginning. "'A painting must not look 'tired' " she remarks.

Certainly there is nothing "tired" about Shore's paintings. They are as fresh as the morning of first Creation; they have a delicacy of bloom like tree-ripened fruit. In nature she has seen deep into the heart of things; her flowers and cactus and rocks and trees are seen with more than a superficial eye. It is not merely that her details are accurate; they are infused with something more. Whatever it is, it gives a rhythm like poetry to her lines; you are conscious of the growth process still going on; her flowers are not dead things, for decoration only; they are part of the breathing of the universe.

Nothing Ambiguous

There is nothing ambiguous in the work of this artist. She knows from the beginning what she is going to draw, and she does so straightforwardly, with keen, incisive line. There is complete absence of obvious brush-stroke; her oils are as smooth as her pastels and watercolors.

Here is a secret about Henrietta Shore; her most beautiful, and least known work, is done in pencil. Few people see it; it is something intensely personal. But this is not the only reason for failing to exhibit more of this medium; there is the very practical objection that the pencil work is fragile and that 'fixing" it robs it of a certain freshness.

Like Paintings

They are more like paintings in black and white than like what is suggested by "pencil." They have the same luminosity, the same incisiveness. Mostly flower studies, the artists spends months of brooding care over a single sketch. More than anything else they recall the old Japanese lacquer-workers, who dedicated themselves religiously to their work, spending years in perfecting a single piece, with the result that the finished object has a texture more beautiful to feel than human skin. A far-fetched analogy, perhaps, but the same spirit actuated both efforts.

Series of Worship Services Scheduled

First in a series of worship services looking to Christmas has been announced for next Sunday at Carmel Community church by Melvin C. Dorsett, minister. Following the 9:45 Sunday school, called "a church school that offers happy educational experiences," the morning church service will be held at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Lawrence M. Knox, newcomer to Carmel, will sing "The Living God" by O'Hara. Ethel Irvine and Gertrude Bardarson will sing the duet, "He Shall Feed His Flock" from Handel's "Messiah." The congregation will share in the singing of Nativity hymns. The message of the hour will present factors vital instructive value. Most notable to religious belief today in an instructive and inspiring manner.

Afternoon and evening activities at the church will include: Junior J-O-Y, 5 o'clock to 6:30 J-O-Y for intermediates, 6:30-8 o'clock, C-Hi-C club, 7 o'clock to 8, at which Vernon Wylls, presdent will lead a discussion of "How to Rightly Choose a Vocation."

Motoring to San Francisco Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Huffer returned with their old friends, Mr, and Mrs. G. H. Bucey of Seattle. After Thanksgiving festivities the Huffers are having the fun of showing their guests the beauties of the Peninsula. Mr. and Mrs. Bucey will be here about a week longer.
